Sincere Jackson is a twenty-two-year-old aspiring author. No one would ever think she finds enjoyment in writing hot, steamy, sexy erotica by looking at her. She's quiet, shy and not outgoing like a lot of young women her age. However, she is confident that she will one day be a New York Times Bestselling author. In the meantime to pay the bills, she takes a job at National Cash Advance. Her boss Mr. Brett Arkwright seems to be nice enough, but he's very handsome. They have a cordial and professional relationship, until one day she overhears him talking all sexy on the telephone with his wife Patricia, whom she's never met. What she overhears makes her spine tingle and penetrates her desires to the core. She starts looking at a man who is off limits to her in a new light. His silvery gray eyes enchant her in a way that makes her want to explore everything that she writes about with her new, sexy boss. His magnetism and flirty ways try to pull her into his alluring aura. She's afraid that once she allows it, there will be no escape. She fights to be strong, because it's the right thing to do. How can she suppress her desires for Mr. Arkwright while working in such close confinements with him day by day? Passions flicker to life and sizzle with desire in this breathtaking novel of lust filled intentions. Will fulfilling desires lead to a deeper love, or will someone get burned in the crossfire?
